Dr. Jennifer Ashton to Speak for Laura W. Bush Institute for Women's Health Event

As the chief medical correspondent for ABC News, and the network's new GMA3 program, Jennifer Ashton, M.D., OB/GYN is on the front lines of every recent health crisis

“Dr. Ashton is a practicing OB/GYN and mother of two young adults,” Tyne added. “She has treated COVID-19 patients and suffered the loss of loved ones. Her compassion and knowledge come at just the right time as we return to work, school, travel and life.”

As part of TTUHSC, the Laura W. Bush Institute for Women's Health is dedicated to improving the lives of women and girls in Texas and across the nation by advancing multidisciplinary science in women's health. Recognizing that differences matter, the institute promotes health, individually inspired, through scientific investigation, translation of science into practice and providing outreach that impacts the community for today and tomorrow.
