

However, Seifert continued, if someone has purchased a drug from one of the illegal or unknown sites, then they probably need to dispose of that drug because there may no way to tell if the drug is what it's supposed to be.

“If someone suspects that they have received one of these counterfeit pills that the DEA is talking about, they should probably take that to their local law enforcement,” he suggested.

Seifert said the FDA has a website (www.fda.gov/drugs/besafex-your-source-online-pharmacy-information/know-your-online-
